

Assumptions during development

- In the Pet store application that I created, one of the requirements was to make a history-log where we should list the history of all the purchases that happened.
Because it was not mentioned where to implement it, I assumed that it would be nice if I make another class Transactions and in the Service I implemented the purchasePets() function where I am saving the date the purchase happened, the number of users that purchased the pet and a number of users that didn't.